

The Transvaal goldfields resulted from gold discoveries during the 19th century in the South African Republic. After insignificant discoveries from 1840 up to 1870, payable or substantial gold deposits were found at:

Leydsdorp in 1870 and 1883

Geelhoutboom farm, or Mac-Mac diggings, in 1873

Pilgrim's Rest in 1873

Barberton in 1881

Kaapsehoop in 1882

Ferreirasdorp in 1886 (in the Witwatersrand Basin, Witwatersrand)
